

Bibliography: International Research
Special Populations and Cultural Competence

- Baker, R. (1998). A theory of international bioethics: The negotiable and the non-negotiable. Kennedy Institute of Ethics Journal, 8(3), 233-273.
- Baker, R. (1998). A theory of international bioethics: Multiculturalism, postmodernism, and the bankruptcy of fundamentalism. Kennedy Institute of Ethics Journal, 8(3), 201-225.
- Benatar, S. R. & Singer, P. A. (2000). A new look at international research ethics. British Medical Journal, 321, 824-826.
- Borasky, D. A. (2002). International research. In R. J. Amdur and E. A. Bankert (Eds.), Institutional review board: Management and function (pp. 481-482). Sudbury, MA: Jones and Bartlett.
- Brody, B. A. (1997). Research ethics: International perspectives. Cambridge Quarterly of Healthcare Ethics, 6(4), 376-384.
- Brunger, F. & Weijer, C. (2002). The importance of context in international research. Ethics & Behavior, 12(4), 384-387.
- Christakis, N. A. (1996). The distinction between ethical pluralism and ethical relativism: Implications for the conduct of transcultural clinical research. In H. Y. Vanderpool (Ed.), The ethics of research involving human subjects: Facing the 21st century (pp. 261-281). Frederick, MD: University Publishing Group, Inc.
- Crigger, B. J. (2001). National bioethics advisory commission report: Ethical and policy issues in international research. IRB: Ethics & Human Research, 23(4), 9-12.
- Crosby, S. & Grodin, M. A. (2002). The challenges of cross-cultural research in the international setting. Ethics & Behavior, 12(4), 376-378.
- Fitzgerald, D. W., Wasunna, A., et al. (2003). Ten questions institutional review boards should ask when reviewing international clinical research protocols. IRB: Ethics & Human Research, 25(2), 14-18.
- Ijsselmuiden, C. B. & Faden, R. R. (1996). Medical research and the principle of respect for persons in non-western culture. In H. Y. Vanderpool (Ed.), The ethics of research involving human subjects: Facing the 21st century (pp. 281-304). Frederick, MD: University Publishing Group, Inc.
- Kass, N. & Hyder, A. A. (2001). Attitudes and experiences of US and developing country investigators regarding US human subjects regulations. Ethical and policy issues in international research. National Bioethics Advisory Commission (NBAC). Bethesda, MD: NBAC. II: B1-B220.

- Kelley, S. D. (2002). A contextualized approach to IRB review for collaborative international research. Ethics & Behavior, 12(4), 372-376.
- Levine, R. J. (1996). International codes and guidelines for research ethics: A critical appraisal. In H. Y. Vanderpool (Ed.), The ethics of research involving human subjects: Facing the 21st century (pp. 235-260). Frederick, MD: University Publishing Group, Inc.
- Levine, R. J. (1998). The 'best proven therapeutic method' standard in clinical trials in technologically developing countries. IRB: A Review of Human Subjects Research, 20(1), 5-9.
- Levine, R. J. (2000). Some recent developments in the international guidelines on the ethics of research involving human subjects. Annals of the New York Academy of Sciences, 918, 170-178.
- Macklin, R. (2001). International clinical trials with applicability to mentally impaired individuals: The conundrum of third world sites. Schizophrenia Research, 51, 87-92.
- Miller, J. (1988). Towards an international ethic for research with human beings. IRB: A Review of Human Subjects Research, 10, 9-11.
- National Bioethics Advisory Commission. (2001). Ethical and policy issues in international research: Clinical trials in developing countries. Bethesda, MD: National Bioethics Advisory Commission.
- Porter, J. P. (1996). Informed consent issues in international research concerns. Cambridge Quarterly of Healthcare Ethics, 5(2), 237-243.
- Reich, W. T. (Ed.). (1995). Summary report of the international summit conference on bioethics towards an international ethic for research involving human subjects 1987. Encyclopedia of Bioethics. New York: Simon and Schuster Macmillian.
- Tripodi, T. & Potocky-Tripodi, M. (2002). Problems and Prospects in International Research: Editorial. Journal of Social Work Research and Evaluation, 3(1), 3-4.
- Weijer, C. & Anderson, J. A. (2001). The Ethics Wars: Disputes over International Research. Hastings Center Report, 31(3), 18-20.